Description of Route to Checkpoint No. 1:

From the semi-arid, coastal breezes found in Southern California, through the hot, desert winds of Las Vegas, Nevada, and into the rising cedar breaks in Utah, the first leg takes you through the most varied environments of the event. You'll leave the Pacific Ocean almost immediately and ride along I-15 through the urban and agricultural greatness that is Southern California. After crossing from one tectonic plate onto another, the landscape changes and you'll find yourself in the high desert of the Mojave. In the valley of Las Vegas you'll soon climb through Arizona's Virgin Gorge and into cooler weather in Utah. Here the change is dramatic–conifer forests, mountain streams, and a good road to bring you into Ruby's Inn, Bryce, Utah, the first checkpoint.

The visual feast continues through Utah's San Juan Mountains. Past Moab you'll ride a highway that shares a narrow valley with the Colorado River. This valley opens onto pinnacles of red stone and haughty mesas overlooking the peaceful Colorado as it wends its way toward the Grand Canyon hundreds of miles to the south. You'll cross the Colorado a second time near an old suspension bridge built in the Thirties. From the Grand River Valley you'll leave Utah and enter Colorado to parallel East Salt Creek before crossing Douglas Pass (8,286 feet) and following Douglas Creek's valley. Watch carefully for animals on the roadway. Bear, elk, deer, and brazen range cattle are apt to challenge your right of way. Soon you'll be in Uintas Mountains, the only east-west running mountain range in the U.S. You'll drive over the Flaming Gorge Dam and cross into Wyoming and Rock Springs, the third checkpoint.

You're headed into Grand Teton National Park and Yellowstone National Park. You'll cross the Snake River in the Grand Tetons and skirt Yellowstone Lake as you travel through Yellowstone Park. Take your time and watch out for urban life running after wildlife. The wildfires of a decade ago have left the park green, lush, and well stocked with buffalo, elk, and deer during the day, and even more at night. Cooke City, MT, is a mecca for snowmobiling and cross-country skiing in season. The town has a rustic ambiance and is your fourth checkpoint.

Plenty of pull outs give you the opportunity to stop and look as far as the eye can see.
